Sling blade cast band members

Sub-deck | Ashton Pienaar's Instagram May never know what really happened below deck, because at least one cast member says he won't attend. Not surprising, but former Third Stew Caroline Bedol tweeted that she is ditching the emergency landing at the drops meeting. Her reason on Twitter was that it didn't work for free. But is that really the case? It's likely she doesn't want to face the crew she's just lobbied for a number of damaging charges. This includes a report of verbal abuse from stew boss Kate Chastain. Plus she claims Chastain and second stew Josiah Carter drank alcohol while on the charter. Bedol also tweeted this cryptic message, no. Actually... WON the war against the Allies, @TvbyBravo @51Minds @Kate_Chastain. For Kate, it's curtains. Let's pretend to be back on Season7 #BelowDeck just for fun. And while Bedol won't be the first below deck cast member to blow off the reunion, viewers hope it will be reconsidered. Bedol holds firm on why she won't participate. In another tweet, she wrote: I wish I could say I'm fine with having to pretend @andy is gorgeous, PRO BONO, but no. However, Bedol seems to admit that participating would be embarrassing (which is a big definitive). Does it matter if I wasn't [asked to join the meeting]? tweeted. The thing is, it's going to be the most embarrassing meeting ever. Here's the line-up: Rhylee, Ross, Ashton, new stew Ashton bangs, new hot but dim kids, Chef, Kate, Josiah, Cappy. The bet rating is through the roof. Followers ask Bedol to attend one Twitter follower seems optimistic and writes: I am! But it would be much better to see you out there chatting with everyone! Another writes: I say this out of concern. I'm giving you props for giving it a shot, but reality TV and social media may not be the best for you. It's brutal and I think going further will help you find happiness. He also wrote: 'Girl. C'mon. Maybe they were bad, but being an adult. She wouldn't be the first to blow away the reunion. The next no-show may be Chandler Brooks, though she didn't make a statement that she wouldn't attend. In fact, Brooks has been completely silent throughout the series. Below deck fans probably remember when chef Leon Walker of season three refused to show up for the reunion. Walker was preserved after the kitchen fire started due to dirty pans sitting inside the kitchen oven. Walker released a statement rmm, I decided to decline the invitation from Bravo to attend the meeting of the show due to the nature in which he portrayed me, not only as a chef, but as a man. I was part of a show that apparently had a motive to cause controversy and divide viewers based on the nature of the show the audience wanted to see. I know who I am and I know that those closest to me are acting for my talent as a chef and a passion for life, family and friends. At the end of the day I contributed to very high ratings for the show. I just wish Bravo was honest with the story. Check out Cheat Sheet Facebook! Apparently, CBS has found the greatest success with many of their dramas running longer than previously thought. Even some of their recent reboots have been almost as long as the original shows (e.g. Hawaii Five-O). NCIS is a good example of an original concept that manages to go beyond the expectations of most dramas. Indeed, though, NCIS was a spinoff of the long-running 1995-2005 series JAG. Rarely do you see a spinoff go on even longer than the show it popped out of. There is no doubt that it is related to the real Naval Criminal Investigation Service. The show's cast are all superstars now, but many are starting to leave. Which ones have been with the show since it started 16 years ago? The initial spinoff of 'JAG' Not until JAG's eighth season in 2003 made NCIS finally spin off on its own show. All that lasted was a two-episode arc to introduce the characters, with Mark Harmon as investigator Leroy Jethro Gibbs. The following fall, NCIS started on CBS, while initially being called Navy NCIS. This title was one of the biggest gaffes in television history because the 'N' at NCIS is already running for the Navy. CBS changed its name to season two and did a good job of pretending nothing had happened. Like many iconic shows, it took several years before it became a big hit. By its eighth season, it had chosen an all-time favorite TV show that might surprise those who had never seen one episode. Who were the original cast members? NCIS | Monty Brinton/CBS via Getty Images Mark Harmon heads throughout the show, and he's been with the show from the start. He's not the only cast member still on the show. One of them just left last season, which some think will never be the show the same. Another actor left the show a few years ago to star in his own spinoff. Yet another original cast member is still going on and could be called a legend in the acting community. Many other cast members have joined in recent years who have become popular enough that the show will be even longer. How long will Harmon be with the show? Since Harmon is now one of the rare actors able to star on the show for nearly 20 years, it seems inevitable rumors of his departure will be in the spring. Sure enough, some media reports say Harmon will leave the show next year. CBS appears yet to reinstate it for the 17th season. If Harmon were to stick with the show, he could join the 20-year Club. Only a few selected actors have played one character continuously for more than two decades. Sasha Alexander as Caitlin Todd Leroy Jethro Gibbs' favorite partner on the show at the beginning was Caitlin Todd, played by Sasha Alexander. He left the show when the character Todd was killed off at the end of the second season. Still, Alexander's Kate Todd character is occasionally seen in flashbacks and through some of these references are done out of habit, bringing wistful realism to the show. Alexander has been in the news a little more recently when discussing allegations of sexual assault against former cast member Michael Weatherly. Michael Weatherly as Anthony DiNozzo While fully known for the Bull show now, Weatherly played senior field agent Tony DiNozzo from the first season of NCIS. After 13 years, he decided to move on to new horizons. Wisely, CBS didn't do its other same-network show NCIS spinoff. With Bull's popularity, don't be surprised to see him play the character for the next 13 years. Pauly Perrette as Abby Sciuto Perrette left NCIS last season after being with the show for 15 seasons. Her Abby Sciuto character was a real fan favorite from Season One, though it was still close to a typecast role. A few rumors have gone around she could return this season at least for hosting. David McCallum as Dr. Donald Ducky Mallard Outside a humorously ironic name, Dr. Mallard's character from actor David McCallum is almost as iconic as Harmon's Gibbs. There's no doubt that a few of you know how legendary David McCallum is if you remember the late 1960s show The Man From U.N.C.L.E. He didn't leave NCIS and shows no signs of being at age 85. Strangely, he acted on The Man from the United Nations. C.L.E for only four seasons. We can only hope that he will remember to play Dr. Mallard especially when it's more than possible that he will play the character for almost 20 years
